LLOYD LIBRARY & MUSEUM

There's just a bit more time left to see our Flora Mania exhibition before we launch the next exhibition, Pick Your Poison, starting with an opening reception at the end of May. A full program schedule with in-person and virtual events will run through the summer. In the meantime, check out our newest podcast episode and stay tuned for more announcements!

Building Your Herbal Library is Sold Out

We're extending our Flora Mania exhibit run until May 18, but the program with Meghan Henshaw has sold out. Mark your calendars for our Pick Your Poison exhibition opening May 31 and get ready for a brand-new program schedule to follow!

Pick Your Poison Opening Reception

When: Friday, May 31, 5-7 p.m.
Where: Lloyd Library

The Lloyd's upcoming Pick Your Poison exhibition highlights the most notorious plants, many of which also have the capacity to save lives. Join us as we explore fatal flowers and venomous vegetables in print as early as the 16th century, from the far corners of the world to your own backyard. Refreshments. Free and open to the public.

New Podcast Episode with Brandon Reynolds

The newest episode of the Lloyd's Between the Leaves podcast is now available and features Brandon Reynolds, founder and CEO of sustainable landscaping company B the Keeper. Previously appearing on the Lloyd's The Sweetness of Honey panel, Reynolds talks with host Meg Hanrahan about bees and biodiversity, and his journey to becoming a landscaper, restorationist, and activist. Listen to the episode here.

The Lloyd will be closed May 27 in observance of Memorial Day
